Welcome 2022

Spartan Project SEARCH welcomed interns to campus in late August to begin orientation instruction. This helped prepare interns for their first job rotation that started in mid-September. During orientation interns explored campus, began navigation training, and prepared for interviews with participating sites. In addition, interns developed teamwork skills in the classroom through various team building activities, developed resumes, and explored jobsites.

Currently, interns are almost half way through their second job rotation. In addition to on-the-job training, interns are learning about time management, interpersonal skills needed for employment, and professionalism. Interns will continue to receive instruction throughout the year related to teamwork, workplace safety, email etiquette, disability awareness, disclosure and advocacy, and financial literacy.

We want to thank our participating job sites! Without your participation, this program would not be possible. At the conclusion of this rotation, interns will update their resumes, prepare for interviews for next rotation, and complete required workplace safety trainings prior to start on March 14.

College of Agriculture and Natural Resources

A huge thank you to Interim Dean Dr. Kelly Millenbah with the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources (CANR) and Dr. Quentin Tyler with MSU Extension for supporting Spartan Project SEARCH. We have also enjoyed working with our new business liaison, Benjamin Darling, with AgBioResearch. Ben has been able to participate in mock interviews, visit our classroom, talk with interns and visit current jobsites to meet site supervisors.

Thank you College of Agriculture and Natural Resources! We appreciate you!
