STATEWIDE 4-H NEWS

Foraging for fun and nutrition in Michigan

Foraging for wild edible plants can be a fun way to get outdoors, try new foods and learn about nature. Learn about commonly foraged plants in Michigan and laws regarding foraging on public and private lands.

Fall. As summer turns to fall, nuts become one of the primary edible foods in the forests. Acorns and black walnuts are both edible but need to be processed before eating. Acorns must be "leached" to remove bitter tannins. This involves boiling the nuts in water for 15 minutes, then draining and repeating the process until the water remains clear. Black walnuts must be hulled, washed, checked for insect infestation, cured and finally cracked. While they are a bit more time-consuming to process, both acorns and black walnuts are versatile, nutrient-rich foods.

Winter. As winter arrives and many plants go dormant, foraging opportunities are fewer. Young white and red pine needles can be used to make tea rich in Vitamin C. Wintergreen maintains its minty flavor and berries throughout winter. The leaves can be used to make tea and the berries can be boiled with sugar to make a jam.

Preparing youth to be Beyond Ready: Building leadership skills through 4-H

Beyond Ready

4-H provides youth with opportunities to develop leadership skills in meaningful and age-appropriate ways. Whether leading a club activity, serving as an officer, mentoring younger members, or helping plan an event, youth practice communication, teamwork, decision-making and responsibility.

Volunteers can support leadership development by encouraging youth voice, sharing responsibilities and creating opportunities for members to take ownership of their learning. Every leadership experience helps young people build confidence and prepares them to contribute in school, work and their communities.

How are you helping youth grow as leaders this year?
